SouthTech Sponsors Athletes & Artists Weekend Joins the Orioles in Supporting Arts' Education

SARASOTA, FL (April 1, 2020) SouthTech was a proud sponsor of the Athletes & Artists Play for Kids weekend fundraising earlier this month. This marks the second consecutive year that SouthTech as supported this event, with SouthTech employees attending the various workshops and games scheduled over the course of the weekend.

The annual "Athletes & Artists Play for Kids" weekend fundraiser began five years ago with the first "Nashville Comes to the Ballpark" charity event and has steadily grown to include more programming, including last year when the ballpark hosted an on-field concert by Cole Swindell to support selected charitable efforts. The weekend combines song and sport to support arts education and girls' empowerment. This year featured the fifth annual "Nashville's Music Row Comes to the Ballpark" VIP charity event, two Orioles home games, and free community workshops for local youth.

A portion of proceeds from the weekend's events goes directly to the Orioles Charitable Foundation's Music & Arts Education Scholarship, which was created in 2019 to support deserving students and programs in Baltimore, Sarasota, and Nashville. To date, the "Athletes and Artists" series has raised over $400,000.
